QUAY APPOINTED.

Named as U. S. Senator From the State of Pennsylvania.

In flaking the Appointment Gov. Stone Cites His Authority For Taking Such Action.

Harrisburg, Pa., April 21.—Immediately on receipt of the news that Mr. Quay was acquitted of the charges against him, Gov. Stone appointed him United States Senator to fill the vacant senatorship until the next Legislature meets and notified Vice-President Hobart as follows:

"Sir: By virtue of the power vested in me as executive of the State of Pennsylvania, under article 1, clause 2, section 3 of the Constitution of the United States, I hereby make the temporary appointment of the Hon. Matthew Stanley Quay to be United States Senator from Pennsylvania until the next meeting of the Pennsylvania Legislature to fill the vacancy now existing in this state. Very respectfully,

WM. F. STONE, "Governor of Pennsylvania." Gov. Stone stated that in appointing Col. Quay he felt that he had done the fit and proper thing. He thought it would make the issue and is better done now than by waiting for weeks. The authority cited by the Governor says that the Governor of any state may make temporary appointments during a recess, to hold until the next Legislature meets.

The enemy was driven back after sharp fighting. Our loss was eight killed and forty wounded. Among the killed was Col. Stotsenburg of the Eighteenth Nebraska infantry, formerly of New Albany. Admiral Dewey has heard nothing as yet from Lieut. Gilmore, and the sailors captured by Filipinos.

He was a member of the Baptist church, and the funeral was preached at his late residence yesterday by Rev. C. H. Nash. The remains were interred in the old Boyd burying ground, near Kelly.

Rocks and 'Dottes.

The question is often raised in regard to the standing of Barred Rocks and White Wyandottes, and their comparative value as business fowls. I have bred both varieties, and many others, for several years, and what few statements I make come from my own experience.

On the first place, let us consider the egg question. The Barred P. Rocks on an average lay a larger egg than the Wyandottes, yet I have Wyandottes that can match them. As to the number of eggs laid during a year, I find very little difference; this point, of course, depending on the manner in which the fowls are bred and fed, and, in fact, the latter statement holds good for every other quality in the fowl.

When it comes to color of eggs, I find a considerable difference. I have brought my White Wyandottes to a very dark egg standard, but my Barred P. Rocks have failed to climb those last few steps, regardless of all the trouble and expense to which I have been to put them on an equal plane with my White Wyandottes in this quality.

Now comes the question of market value. In this I find the Wyandottes decidedly the better, but by that I do not say that the Barred P. Rocks are not good. The 'Dottes, when dressed for broilers, show plump meaty breasts, fine legged carcasses, with rich yellow skins, which are free from the dark pinfeathers that so detract from the appearance of the Rocks. The Rocks for broilers are somewhat bony, and form very little breast until past the broiler line.

When it comes to roasters there is a slight difference. The 'Dottes still have the same features, but they fall short of the Rocks in weight. On the other hand, the growing Rocks have thrown a good breast (perhaps a little coarser in quality) and the pinfeathers which took away the rich effect when chicks, have now nearly all developed into feathers, and the birds show a clean yellow carcass. Here I consider the 'Dottes first.

There is another important point, and that is growth and maturity. This is an important point, and points one for the Rock. I find the 'Dottes are slow growers, and that the pullets do not reach maturity that is laying age, until two to four weeks later than the Rocks. I suppose many will pick me up here, but by honest comparison in my own yards I find this is too true, and as these two breeds have been bred and raised under my own care and the same conditions, I want no other proof.

Some people claim that the Rocks are harder, and I must confess that as for fertile eggs and rugged chicks I think they are a little in the lead; yet after the down is shed I can see no difference.

When it comes to the question of food, I find that the Rocks are more ravenous, and naturally require more food than the 'Dottes.

If you are thinking of raising show birds, the White Wyandottes are the easiest to perfect, as it requires less knowledge or color-breeding and experience in mating, which must be employed in breeding Rock show birds. Now let me say here, do not expect to breed show birds from nothing, or even something from nothing, for as you become initiated you will find it difficult to raise prize winners from even the best of something.

I have tried to bring out the principal points of difference in these two breeds and, as you see, for general profit they just about balance. From my statements one might say, he "has no preference," but let me say I have, and that preference is given to the Wyandottes. It is not, however, a preference as to result in profit and loss, but a preference due to my idea of what a profitable fowl ought to be.—J. F. C., in Farm Poultry.

Silver Wyandottes.

Prosperity, with a big "P" has finally come to the breeders of thoroughbred poultry, and to none more so than those who have silver Wyandottes to offer.

The demand for good birds is unprecedented in my fourteen years' experience with this breed. It is gratifying, not only for my pocket's sake, but also for the reason that this most beautiful and useful breed is recognized as much in a substantial manner by the public at large, thus assuring them a standing in the poultry kingdom only second to one other breed.

We have in the Silver Wyandotte the best all-purpose fowl in the United States to-day. In England it is recognized as such, having been taken up by the English fanciers (although originating in this country) and bred to such perfection that they lead to day at all the principal English shows.

The qualities claimed for the Silver Wyandottes are their beautiful markings, hardiness, quick growth (making splendid broilers at 5 to 10 weeks), well feathered and plump of body, or fine table fowl when matured, weighing about five pounds then—the meat being tender and juicy; or if you want a fowl for eggs, they are second to none, especially as winter layers, having the advantage of the Leghorns, their only rivals as layers, in this—that they are quiet and gentle, and can easily be controlled in a four-foot poultry netting fence; and, again, in the fact that they will raise a brood or two of chickens every year, and do it in such a way that it is safe to count on bringing up 90 per cent of the chicks hatched.

For utility and beauty, for the fancier or farmer, or for the amateur with a restricted suburban lot, there is no breed of poultry that will give quite so much pleasure and profit as the Silver Wyandottes.—HENRY STEINMESH in American Poultry Journal.

Cow Peas For Hogs and Hens.

L. W. Lightly, writing in the National Stockman, says: "A neighbor of mine asked me to get him some seed (cow peas) to sow for soiling, but an extra wet season gave plenty of pasture and the cow peas were allowed to ripen, whereupon the fowls started to harvest them, and he told me that his chickens never laid so many eggs in the same length of time as they did while the cow peas lasted, and right in the fall, too, when chickens generally stop laying and leisurely change their clothes and make up their toilet. Eggs were a good price, and the crop of cow peas was the most profitable crop he raised that season; and he did not have the trouble to harvest it either. The kafir corn he harvested for a winter feed for the poultry, and reports it a good thing, but by no means equal to the peas as an egg-producing food. If you turn a lot of pigs into a field of cow peas when they begin to ripen, you will be astonished to find a lot of hogs in a remarkably short time."

Joke on Papa.

Talking of good stories and the progression of the world, Colonel Ham in his Lyceum lecture Thursday evening, told one that fits in well. A dear little girl who was sweet and pretty but who had a homely papa was looking at herself in a looking glass one day. She looked at herself a long time then at her mother, who sat near. "Mamma, did God make me?" "Certainly, my darling, certainly He did." "Did he make papa?" "Why yes, of course, of course. He did, dear, he makes everybody." The dear little girl looked at herself a while longer and then said: "Well, He's doing a good deal better work here lately, ain't He, mamma?"

The Filipinos have captured five officers and ten seamen from the gunboat Yorktown, who were ambushed while ashore attempting to rescue Spanish prisoners on the East coast of Luzon. As American troops are looked upon as foreign invaders, there is scarcely a hope that the prisoners will ever be heard from alive. It is far more likely that they were promptly put to death.

A little girl of Skipack, Pa., fell on the sharp edge of a teakettle the other day and cut off the end of her nose.

There is nothing objectionable in its taste. It has a very agreeable flavor and is acceptable to the most delicate stomach.

What We Do.

We don't keep goods in stock. We don't hire any clerks. We don't pay any insurance. We pay but very little rent and but a small amount of taxes. But we will buy and deliver to you any purchasable article in existence cheaper than you can get it elsewhere for the very reasons above enumerated. Of course if we carried a large stock and had heavy expenses, we would have to make big profits too. But as we buy direct from the factories and have our goods sold before we order them, we are enabled to undersell those whose expenses are necessarily greater.

In undertaking this business we are confident that a great cry of "Patronize home industry" will go up from those who must of necessity sell here.

Don't be deceived. Ours is a home industry too. We send no money away for goods than you do, but we divide the profits with you, so that as we buy direct from the factories and have our goods sold before we order them, we are enabled to undersell those whose expenses are necessarily greater.

DEMOCRATIC TICKET.

For Railroad Commissioner,
J. FLETCHER DEMPSEY, of Hopkins County.

Gov. Bradley's friends refused to sign the Peace Protocol at the Louisville committee meeting.

With Reed out of Congress and Dingley dead, there will be a scramble for a new deal in House leadership.

The Republican State Convention was called to meet in Lexington on July 12. The counties will select delegates in any way they prefer.

Vice President Hobart has announced that owing to ill health he will not be a candidate for re-election.

The Kentucky boys are to be mustered out at Savannah May 16, and Henderson is raising a fund to give the members of Co. H, a suitable welcome when they get home. About $100 has already been paid in. The Gleaner is heading the movement.

The three candidates for the state senate in the Third District, Messrs. Sims, Utley and Gilbert, have all declared themselves in favor of the Goebel Election Law, McChord Railroad bill, and opposed to the School Book Trust, and for Joe Blackburn for the United States Senate.

Quay was whitewashed and acquitted by the jury in his bank-robbing case, and the Governor of Pennsylvania at once followed up the acquittal by appointing him to the Senate, the Legislature having failed to elect. His right to the seat by appointment will of course be questioned under the decision in the Mantle case.

Only once since the adoption of the secret ballot has Kentucky gone Democratic in a state election and that was under the present election law guaranteeing a free ballot and a fair count. No Democrat who loves his party should take any chances. The next Governor must be a friend and advocate of the present election law. Play ball!

Cal. M. Lewis Clark, of Louisville, shot and killed himself in his room at a Memphis hotel Saturday morning. He left nothing to indicate the cause of the suicide, but had been much depressed in spirits for some time. He was one of the best known turpins in the United States. He was 53 years old and a son of Gen. Meriwether Lewis Clark. His wife and two daughters are in Paris, France, and his only son lives in Chicago.

The Democratic State Convention must endorse the last Democratic Legislature. It cannot escape it if it would, and we do not think it will desire to do so, any more than the Republican party in Kentucky could escape an endorsement of Bradley's administration, or the Republican party in the nation could escape an endorsement of the Republican Congress.—Elizabeth-town News.

General Hardin made a speech in Owensboro a few days ago, and as a question was put directly to him, he is credited with having said more, regarding his position on several public questions, than in any of his previous speeches. There still remains, however, a great deal more for him to say. He was asked, at Owensboro, what he would do with a bill repealing the election law. His answer was, that he would not stand in the way of the will of the people. The position taken by Gen. Hardin is a most unsatisfactory one, even to his supporters. It seems to lack, that most deserving quality, nerve.—Union Telegram.

To the people of Christian county, the greatest issue in the campaign now upon us, is the election law that guarantees fair and honest elections in the future, and no more star-chamber proceedings in the canvass of the votes. In the elections of the past, Democrats have been refused a division of officers on many of the election boards and denied representation, even by attorney, in contests, at the final counting of the returns. Under the present law, this unfairness is no longer possible and the Republican majority in Christian county cannot be fraudulently inflated with transient floaters, convicts, minors and repeaters. On a square showdown, the majority is not so large that it cannot be overcome by work and organization, with the opportunity for fraud removed. On this very important question all three of the Democratic candidates have been heard. Senator Goebel, being the author of the bill, is of course its strongest and ablest advocate and defender. Capt. Stone's position is satisfactory since he has declared that he will not sign any bill repealing it, not sanctioned by the approval of a Democratic caucus. On the other hand, Gen. Hardin has refused to take a stand for or against the measure. He has authorized no friend to say that he is for it or that he would veto a repeal bill passed by the same elements that fought the passage of the caucus bill. His position is in doubt, but there is yet time for him to remove the doubt.

Annual Meeting.

The Annual Stockholders and Directors Meeting of the St. Bernard Coal Company was held here Wednesday and a dividend was declared, says the Earlington Bee. There was no change made in the officers of that company. The directors and stockholders who were present from elsewhere were: B. N. Warren, Philadelphia; H. B. Hanson, Saratoga Springs; W. H. Howe, Nashville; Julian F. Gracey, Clarksville; E. G. Sebrer, Henderson; J. W. Campbell, Hopkinsville; M. Cain and Geo. M. Davis, Morton's Gap.

Bob Burnett Overheated.

Mr. R. A. Burnett, who has a store at Sorgho, went to a sawmill near that place Friday afternoon, and for amusement went to work at the saw. In a short time he became overheated and fell. It was thought that he would die, but he finally rallied and was taken home. He was still very weak yesterday, but was better.—Owensboro Inquirer.

THE TWO SAMs.

Georgia Sam and Ohio Sam Jones, Preacher and Politician.

Rev. Sam P. Jones, the only and original, evangelist and lecturer, of Cartersville, Ga., was at the Galt House yesterday. He was looking every inch of himself, his shoes glistening like a mirror in the sunshine, and vigorously extracting the juice from a good sized quid of tobacco, as he strode through the rotunda of the hotel. The Reverend Samuel is soon to return to Louisville and turn his big guns on the strongholds of the devil and the great citadel of sin. What he will do with the "red-nosed Democrats" and "whiskey-bloated Republicans" will be "a plenty." But the assertion is ventured that Brother Jones will give the question of free silver and Mr. Bryan's taxes a very wide berth. He was called down too cleverly at Hopkinsville on one of his rash statements along this line, which he was compelled to take back. The manner in which he made the correction, however, did not sit well with thousands, not only in Kentucky, but all over the United States.

The Other Sam.

Toledo Sam Jones attracted much attention during his visit to New York last week to attend the workingman's Jefferson dinner. The man who, in spite of the party machines, had won the Mayoralty of Toledo on the new municipal issues, was not lost even in Greater New York. His speech made a favorable impression, and as New York is now grappling the problems discussed, he was fortunate enough, to be timely.—Dispatch.

The post-graduate course was taken at the Episcopal College at Bolivar, Tenn.

After a brief trip Mr. and Mrs. Trahern will arrive here by the end of the week and take board at Mrs. Hardin's on Clay street.

CASKY COUPLE

Desire the Matrimonial Knot Untied by the Court.

Joe W. Bartlett vs. Georgia Bartlett is the style of a divorce suit filed in the Circuit Clerk's office yesterday. The petition states that the parties were married in August 1897 and lived together until the following February. The petition further alleges that defendant deserted plaintiff and has since the latter date failed and refused to live with him.

"Spring Unlocks The Flowers To Paint The Laughing Soil."

And not even Nature would allow the flowers to grow and blossom to perfection without good soil. Now Nature and people are much alike; the former must have sunshine, latter must have pure blood in order to have perfect health.

Hood's Sarsaparilla cures blood troubles of all sorts. It is to the human system what sunshine is to Nature—the destroyer of disease germs. It never disappoints.

Poor Blood—"The doctor said there were not seven drops of good blood in my body. Hood's Sarsaparilla built me up and made me strong and well." S. E. BROWN, 10 Astor Hill, Astoria, Maine.
Dyspepsia, etc.—"A complication of troubles, dyspepsia, chronic catarrh and inflammation of the stomach, constipation, made me miserable. Had no appetite until I took Hood's Sarsaparilla, which acted like magic. I am thoroughly cured." N. B. SZENAY, 1878 W. 14th Av., Denver, Col.
Rheumatism—"My husband was obliged to give up work on account of rheumatism. No remedy helped until he used Hood's Sarsaparilla, which permanently cured him. It cured my daughter of catarrh. I give it to the children with good results." Mrs. J. B. McKean, Stamford, Ct.

TO-MORROW'S SHOW.

Breezy Time is a First Class Attraction.

Manager Holland should be congratulated on securing so good an attraction for April 26 as "A Breezy Time." If he always books an attraction as good as this, the amusement loving people of Hopkinsville will have no cause to complain. Wherever this season the press and public have been unanimous in pronouncing their performance the very best ever seen.

"A Breezy Time" is in three acts, the plot of which is so light that it is hardly worth mentioning, although each act has been happily impregnated with everything that is new and up-to-date, including music, songs, dances and clever specialties, all of which are introduced in an easy and perfectly legitimate manner.

The caste of "A Breezy Time" Company consists of the pick of some of the foremost artists now appearing on the farce comedy stage, who have the ability to depict in a fine and artistic manner the finely drawn characters in this, the funniest of all comedies.

SEASON OF 1899.

TO OUR FRIENDS: Another season of seed time is fast approaching, and the wise and prudent farmer will again use the old and favorably known JONES' BRANDS OF BONE AND ANIMAL MATTER FERTILIZERS that have for many years done their full duty when applied to both Spring and Fall crops. The use of commercial fertilizers is almost universal, and the experience of many years has proven conclusively that ANIMAL MATTER FERTILIZERS are the most complete plant food known, and the fact of putting ACID PHOSPHATE ROCK in a bag and branding it "DIS-SOLVED BONE" does not make it animal matter. Honest strictly pure Animal Matter Fertilizers cost more than rock goods because they are worth more, and we ask that you remember this fact. Our goods go out under our guarantee analysis, and this guarantee is good. We offer our goods on their merits, and refer with great satisfaction to their most excellent reputation in all parts of Ohio, Indiana, and Kentucky, where they are extensively used. We respectfully urge you to give the celebrated Jones Fertilizing Co.'s goods a trial on both Spring and Fall crops, and we know satisfactory results and future orders will certainly follow.

THEIR LANGUAGE.

Animals Can Talk in a Way of Their Own.

Some of Them Can Reason Like Intelligent Beings.

While talking the other day with one of the zoologists at Rock Creek park I asked if the animals could converse with one another.

"Certainly," he replied. "There isn't the slightest doubt of it, although we cannot understand their language, and it is very hard to acquire. Several well-known scientists are now studying that subject. Men have built cages around themselves in the jungles of Africa to learn the gorilla and monkey languages. There seems no doubt that animals have a means of communicating warnings, etc., to each other. With most of them there is a distinct variation of note that indicate certain things. Hens have certain clucks or calls that mean danger. Others signify that food is at hand. And so with all animals. With the more intelligent it is carried to a higher degree than with the lower grades. The question has been worked out with regard to wild animals by the well-known animal artist, Ernest Seaton Thompson, particularly with regard to the wolves of the west, in his book, 'Wild Animals I Have Known.' It is broadly biographic of individual animals; not simply an account of the characteristics of a species, we may say, but of individuals.

"All animals possess individuality, which is, perhaps, not as highly developed in the wild as in the domesticated. As we become more intimately acquainted with them we find that there is an individuality about each one, and the reason we have not appreciated it is that we have not known them. Mr. Thompson is now in the city, and gave a talk before the Biological society recently on the subject that was intensely interesting.

"I have seen the wolves out at the zoological park pick up a bone that had been left over from dinner and had been coated with sand and dirt. They would take it over to a tub of water, put it in, push it about with the paws and nose until it had been thoroughly washed and then take it out and gnaw it.

The Arabian baboon is always a center of attraction and is very fond of children. To tease him people who know his peculiarity often make a pretense of striking a child. The baboon will instantly fly into a violent rage. He will grab the bars, shake them and scream at top of his voice. There is no doubt his fatherly interest in children would result in harm to those who pretend to mistreat them could he get out of his cage.

"In Peru vultures will gather about a dead animal in a very few minutes, when they were not within sight of the eye. They drop out of the heavens, where they have been soaring at such a height as not to be noticeable. Experiments have been conducted to ascertain whether they had a sense of smell or depended entirely upon scent of eyes. Putrid meat has been placed upon the ground, a canvas spread over it and the vultures placed upon the canvas. Although the odor of the meat was strongly discernible the vultures rested quietly over it and seemed not to be aware of its presence. As soon as the canvas was removed and the meat exposed to view they readily devoured it. This seems to indicate that they have no sense of smell.

"At the 'zoo' here the Macaque monkey is kept in a cage adjoining that of the hyena, with a wooden partition between them. Near the front of the partition there is a little crack, and by placing his eye to the opening the monkey can watch the hyena. It is so close to the front of the cage that he can keep his eye to the opening and reach around into the hyena's apartment. Yesterday I noticed him for quite a time. He would watch the hyena through the crack and then torment the ugly beast by placing his hand in front of his cage. The monkey was very careful, however. Whenever the hyena placed his nose close to the bars he would give him a tap or a scratch, but despite the efforts of the hyena to catch the monkey's hand the latter came out uninjured and was greatly amused. As I watched them it seemed to me that the monkey realized that the hyena was angry, and he simply tormented him for the fun there was in it. The monkey had an expression of most complete satisfaction.

"A cat I had on my ranch out west was a great friend of a shepherd dog, and when it was him asleep would creep up quietly until it got within easy reach and jump on his back. It would scamper away and get out of sight behind a corner of the building before the dog had a chance to see what had disturbed his sleep. The cat would peep around the corner to see how the dog took it, and when the dog would settle down to snooze again the cat would repeat the joke.

"Another illustration of the humor in the cat would be given when the dog would sit out in the yard and gaze dreamily into the distance. The cat would sneak up, make a rush, stand up on its hind legs and place its paws on the dog's face. This proceeding would cause the dog quite a little shock, which the cat enjoyed, and which would be frequently repeated. I have no doubt that the cat enjoyed the proceeding. The cat was intelligent enough to let the dog alone until he had entirely forgotten the trick and was not looking for anything of the sort."—Chicago Record.

AMERICAN WIVES IN ENGLAND

Have Done Much to Promote the International Good Feeling.

The Americans who have gone to England by invitation are the ones who have done unvarying good to the cause of Anglo-American fraternization. I refer to the American wives of Englishmen, especially of aristocrats and of Englishmen in power. Practically all of these marriages have resulted very happily—it is the fashion to say that they all have done so—and few women, even in England, where the wives of public men are often active and influential in politics, are more so than some of these English by adoption. If a good understanding between the two countries is a consummation to be wished for, and it comes about, the greatest credit to any individuals will be due to the American helpmates of Englishmen—especially, perhaps, to one who is wedded to a member of the government and causes herself to be constantly referred to as the keenest champion, in high social circles, of the alliance project. There are American men in England who try to forget their nationality, and others who speak contemptuously of the land of their birth and source of their wealth, but this is not the case with any American women in England whom I have met or heard of. They are of the same stock as the earnest women of the confederacy, who are often credited with having long delayed the close of the civil war after southern success was seen to be out of the question.

It has not been a difficult matter for these ladies to promote a desire for cordial relations with us. Two years ago I learned from a high source that the government at that time had long cherished this desire, and that during all that time the best argument reflecting this wish—had set an example to the aristocracy by the persistence with which he cultivated the acquaintance of influential Americans and the unusual warmth of his manner towards them. For many years it has been noted that no persons in the state—all pledged, of course, to prevent a good understanding between the two nations until we free Ireland from English rule. Robert Barr, the novelist, now living in England, once approached the subject of the blood ties between the two peoples by offering to lay me a wager that if I would step off a train anywhere in England, and at any three doors whose bells I chose to ring, would ask the question: "Have you any relative in America?" two replies out of three would be: "Yes."—Julian Ralph, in Harper's Magazine.

MR. DYER'S BOOK.

Narrative of a Soldier Who Wore the Gray.

Mr. Jno. W. Dyer, of Evansville, is in the city for the purpose of introducing his book of "Reminiscences." It is a narrative relating to incidents as they occurred from day to day and as seen by the private soldier.

The writer was an active participant from '61 to '65 and the fortunes of war gave him a varied experience. The camp, the march, the hospital, the prison, the battle and the end are vividly portrayed in this story, written from actual experience and absolutely true.

From Bowling Green, where the Kentucky force was first organized, through all the active service of the army of the Tennessee, Donelson, Shiloh, Perryville, Murfreesboro, Chickamauga, Missionary Ridge, The Dalton-Atlanta Campaign, Sherman's march to sea and across the Carolinas, the battle of Bentonville, the last of the war, and from Greensboro, N. C., to Washington, Ga., as the escort of President Davis.

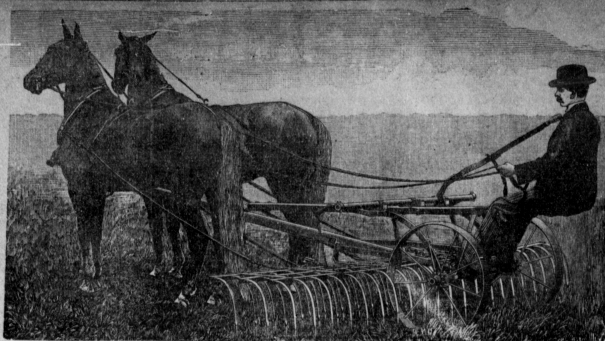

While not a history, this book should be in the home of every family in the country, as it is invaluable as a book of reference.

Sent by mail to any address in the U. S., Canada or Mexico for $1.25. Order from Jno. W. Dyer, Evansville, Ind.

FORBES & BROTHER.

ON MAY 16.

The Soldier Boys Will Soon Come Marching Home.

The Third Kentucky volunteer infantry will be mustered out of the United States service at Savannah, Ga., on Tuesday, May 16. This information was received Saturday by Gov. Bradley in a personal telegram from Adj. Gen. H. C. Corbin, of the War Department.

The Governor was also notified through the same source that the boys of the Third would receive the war rate of payment, and not the peace rate, as was stated in Washington dispatches several weeks ago, thus giving them $14.60 per month for service instead of $13. This concession was secured by the Governor at the instance of Col. T. J. Smith, of the regiment. The Third is still a regiment of the Kentucky State Guard, and will likely be reorganized under the command of Col. Smith. Adj. Gen. Collier, when asked concerning the matter, said that he had heard nothing from Col. Smith as to his desire to stay in the State service, but that it was generally believed that he would remain, and if so all the officers under him would be retained.
